They paraded before him, dressed in their Sunday clothes, and each carrying a bright flag. He thought it all a splendid joke. He laughed and kept time to the music with his saucy, royal heels. He kicked as hard as he could against the legs of his high-chair, which is the kind of throne he has now. Every child was given a pretty silver medal with a portrait of the tiny sovereign stamped upon it. Alfonso himself, and his mamma and little sisters, wore similar ones of gold. THE BABY KING S BIRTHDAY. 173 Such a feast as the young folk had! Fourteen thousand meat pies, twice as many cakes and oranges, and two thousand pounds of candy were ordered and disposed of. His Majesty, the host, grabbed for the oranges and cried for the sugar-plums just as any other wee would have a party every day in the week. I wish I could show Our Little Ones a photograph of the queen and her children. Just such a sweet picture may be seen any day in their own homes. The mamma is pouring tea at table; Alfonso is in his high-chair at her side, and the two small princesses are in their places, smiling and dainty, in their plain white dresses. I hope all the little people who read this story have a dear papa to sit opposite mamma; but there is none in this photograph. The royal...
